NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on March 11, 2025 at 10:00 am in the courtroom of the Honorable Rita F. Lin, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, Courtroom 15, 18th Floor, San Francisco, California, Defendant and Counterclaim plaintiff Micron Technology, Inc. (“MTI”) and defendant Micron Consumer Products Group, LLC (collectively, “Micron”) hereby move the Court under Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 16(b)(4) to modify the case schedule to permit MTI to file Second Amended Counterclaims.

Plaintiff and Counterclaim defendant Yangtze Memory Technologies Company, Ltd. (“YMTC”) and Counterclaim defendant Yangtze Memory Technologies, Inc. (collectively, “YMTC Entities”) do not oppose this Motion and consent to MTI filing its Second Amended Counterclaims.

This Motion is based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the Memorandum of Points and Authorities below, the Declaration of J. Jason Lang (“Lang Decl.”) filed concurrently herewith, the pleadings and papers on file in this case, and any other matters of which the Court may take judicial notice.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

On February 16, 2024, MTI asserted patent infringement counterclaims against the YMTC Entities based on five MTI patents. Dkt. 35. On March 12, 2024, the YMTC Entities moved to dismiss those counterclaims based on MTI’s alleged failure to plead marking and post-complaint infringing activity. Dkt. 49. The YTMC Entities repeatedly represented to this Court that they were no longer committing infringing activity in the United States, i.e., post-complaint activity. For example, the YMTC Entities stated that “Micron knows that YMTC/YMTI are not selling the accused 3D NAND products in the U.S. (or otherwise engaging in conduct that would infringe).” Dkt. 53 at 1. In short, the YMTC Entities represented to the Court that MTI had no basis to assert infringement theories that require post-complaint infringement.

While the motion was under submission, the YMTC Entities made their L.R. 3-4(d) production, which requires “[d]ocuments sufficient to show the sales, revenue, cost, and profits for

2 4(d). Although this production [REDACTED]
3 [REDACTED], it did not disclose any post-complaint sales or 4 importations of the accused products in the United States. Nor did it disclose any sales or 5 importations of a particular accused product type, namely, its 232-Layer 3D NAND memory
6 products.

7 On July 16, 2024, the Court dismissed MTI’s counterclaims with leave to amend. Dkt. 78.
8 On August 1, 2024—in reliance on the YMTC Entities’ representations to the Court and their Patent
9 L.R. 3-4(d) production—MTI amended its counterclaims, dropping three patents and its allegation
10 of willful infringement. Without the ability to show that YMTC engaged in infringing activity in 11 2024, MTI could not allege infringement as to apparatus claims that it practiced or willfulness under 12 the Court’s order of dismissal. And without documents showing that YMTC had imported 232-
13 Layer 3D NAND memory products into the United States, MTI had to drop its infringement
14 allegations against 232-Layer products as well.

18 [REDACTED]
19 [REDACTED]
20 [REDACTED]

21 From December 2024 to the filing this Motion, MTI has acted diligently to request relief.
22 [REDACTED] and then meeting and conferring with the 23 YMTC Entities’ counsel, MTI timely brings this Motion seeking leave to modify the schedule to 24 amend its counterclaims to reassert the three patents that it dropped and to reassert its willfulness
25 claim in view of its reliance on the YMTC Entities’ misstatements about their infringing activity
26 and their incomplete Patent L.R. 3-4(d) production. The YMTC Entities do not oppose this Motion.
27 The parties agree that no other adjustment to Court’s schedule is necessary.

1           II.           STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE DECIDED

2           Given that (1) MTI was diligent in seeking leave to amend the case schedule after learning
 3 that YMTC’s representations that it was not currently engaging in infringing activity were incorrect
 4 and that YMTC withheld disclosure of such activity, (2) YMTC does not oppose MTI’s motion,
 5 and (3) MTI’s amendments will not impact the case schedule, should the Court modify the case
 6 schedule to allow MTI to amend its counterclaims to reassert the three patent infringement
 7 counterclaims and the willfulness claim that it dropped in reliance on YMTC’s statements and 8 Patent Local Rule production?

9           III.           STATEMENT OF FACTS

10           On February 16, 2024, MTI asserted patent infringement counterclaims against the YMTC
 11 Entities for their infringement of U.S. Patent Nos. 10,475,737 (the “’737 patent”), 8,945,996 (the 12 “’996 patent”), 8,803,214 (the “’214 patent”), 10,872,903 (the “’903 patent”), and 10,373,974 (the 13 “’974 patent”) (collectively, the “Originally Asserted MTI Patents”). Dkt. 35. MTI based these 14 counterclaims on information in public sources about the YMTC Entities’ infringing activities
 15 related to their 128-layer and 232-layer 3D NAND products (“128-Layer Products” and “232-Layer
 16 Products,” respectively). Id. ¶¶ 14-21. MTI alleged that the YMTC Entities, both individually and 17 together as a joint enterprise: (1) directly infringed at least by importing the 128-Layer and 232-
 18 Layer Products into the United States, (2) infringed by making the 128-Layer and 232-Layer
 19 Products overseas and importing them into the United States, and (3) willfully infringed MTI’s
 20 patents. Id. ¶¶ 14-83.

21           On March 12, 2024, the YMTC Entities moved the Court to dismiss MTI’s counterclaims.
 22 Dkt. 49. Notably, the YMTC Entities repeatedly represented that they were no longer committing
 23 infringing activity in the United States. For example, the YMTC Entities stated that “Micron knows
 24 that YMTC/YMTI are not selling the accused 3D NAND products in the U.S. (or otherwise 25 engaging in conduct that would infringe).” Dkt. 53 at 1. The YMTC Entities further argued that 26 MTI “cannot plausibly support a claim for infringement in 2024—particularly given ... the ‘export
 27 bans’ imposed on YMTC in 2022 that have effectively prevented YMTC from undertaking U.S.-
 28 based commercial activity.” Id. at 2. And the YMTC Entities asserted that “as Micron knows,

1 YMTC’s 2022 addition to the Entity List effectively prevented [YMTC’s] ability to do business
2 here.” Id. at 3 n.4.

3 While YMTC’s motion to dismiss was pending, on June 27, 2024, the YMTC Entities made
4 their Patent L.R. 3-4(d) production. Patent L.R. 3-4(d) required that the YMTC Entities produce
5 “[d]ocuments sufficient to show the sales, revenue, cost, and profits for accused instrumentalities
6 ... for any period of alleged infringement.” Patent L.R. 3-4(d). [REDACTED]

7 [REDACTED]
8 [REDACTED] See YMTC-MICRON_0009683.
9 [REDACTED]
10 [REDACTED]

11 On the July 16, 2024, the Court dismissed all of MTI’s counterclaims. Dkt. 78. The Court
12 based its decision on two grounds that are relevant here. First, the Court found that MTI’s “factual
13 allegations do not provide a sufficient basis for the Court to plausibly infer that Yangtze Memory
14 was selling, offering to sell, importing, or using the accused products in the United States, let alone
15 that Yangtze Memory did so or was likely to do so after February 16, 2024.” Dkt. 78 at 3. Second, 16 the Court found that MTI had not alleged that it marked its products, which meant that MTI had to 17 plausibly allege post-complaint (post February 16, 2024) infringing acts. Id. at 2. The Court
18 dismissed MTI’s counterclaims with leave to amend. Id. at 5.

19 In view of YMTC’s representations and its Patent L.R. 3-4(d) production, MTI could only
20 assert: (1) apparatus patents that MTI did not practice (and thus no marking obligation would apply)
21 and (2) patents that cover methods of making the accused products (and thus no marking obligation
22 would apply). [REDACTED]
23 [REDACTED]

24 On August 1, 2024—in reliance on the YMTC Entities’ representations to the Court and 25 their Patent L.R. 3-4(d) production—MTI amended its counterclaims, dropping three Originally 26 Asserted MTI Patents and all its allegations against YMTC’s 232-Layer products. Specifically,
27 MTI amended its counterclaims to assert infringement against YMTC’s 128-Layer products (1)
28 only under Section 271(g) for the ’996 patent (as there is no marking requirement), and (2) only

1 under Section 271(a) for the '903 patent (as MTI was able to allege compliance with any marking
2 obligations for that patent). Dkt. 93; see also Dkt. 110 (answering, as opposed to moving to dismiss,
3 MTI's First Amended Counterclaims). For the '737, '214, and '974 patents, however, MTI was 4 unable to assert similar infringement theories. In short, without being able to allege current
5 infringing activities, MTI had no choice but to drop these three patents as well as its allegations
6 that YMTC willfully infringed.

7 Subsequently, MTI discovered evidence suggesting that the YMTC Entities' production of 8 sales and importation information was incomplete. After much correspondence and meeting and 9 conferring, on October 4, 2024, Micron moved to compel YMTC to produce information and 10 documents related to its importation, sales, offers for sale, sampling, testing, qualification, and 11 related activities in the U.S. See Dkt. 147. On October 18, 2024, the Court ordered YMTC to 12 produce information and documents related to YMTC's manufacturing, worldwide sales,
13 importation, intercompany transfers, prototyping, testing, qualification, marketing, and related 14 activity. See Dkt. 163 at 1-7.

15 As demonstrated below, YMTC's belated Court-ordered productions reveal that YMTC's
16 representations to the Court about its infringing activities were incorrect and that its earlier
17 disclosures about its sales and importation activities were, at best, incomplete.

3 V. THE COURT SHOULD GRANT MTI LEAVE TO FILE SECOND AMENDED
 4 COUNTERCLAIMS

5 A. There Is Good Cause To Amend The Scheduling Order Under Rule 16

6 Good cause exists to amend the Scheduling Order (Dkt. 141) to permit MTI to file its 7 Second Amended Counterclaims (reasserting three Originally Asserted MTI Patents and its 8 willfulness claim) because (1) MTI only dropped those patents due YMTC's incorrect
 9 representations and YMTC's incomplete production, and (2) MTI acted diligently in seeking leave
 10 after discovering YMTC's misrepresentations. In addition, YMTC consents to MTI's amendment, 11 and the amendment will not otherwise affect the schedule. MTI is attaching a redline of the 12 proposed Second Amended Counterclaims to this motion. See Ex. B. The Second Amended
 13 Counterclaims only reassert the three dropped patents, reassert MTI's claims for willful
 14 infringement, and add factual pleadings as to the YMTC Entities' post-complaint sales. Id.

15 First, as Section III demonstrated in detail, MTI dropped the three patents from its 16 counterclaims based on the YMTC Entities' representations about its infringing activities and their 17 production pursuant to Patent L.R. 3-4(d). Specifically, MTI relied on YMTC's statements that it
 18 had not sold or imported any 232-Layer products in the United States and that it had not sold or 19 imported any 128-Layer or 232-Layer products in the United States after MTI filed its 20 counterclaims in February 2024. For example, the YMTC Entities stated that "Micron knows that 21 YMTC/YMTI are not selling the accused 3D NAND products in the U.S. (or otherwise engaging 22 in conduct that would infringe)." Dkt. 53 at 1. Consistent with these statements, the YMTC
 23 Entities' Patent L.R. 3-4(d) production did not include any recent infringing activity or any activity
 24 relating to its 232-layer 3D products. Based on the YMTC Entities' statements and production,
 25 MTI had no basis—at that time—to maintain three infringement counterclaims or its willful
 26 infringement claim. Dkt. 93.

27 Second, as demonstrated in Section III, after a Court order compelling production from 28 YMTC, the YMTC Entities began to produce information and documents in late December 2024

has acted diligently since then, including investigating those productions, conferring with YMTC, and filing this Motion on January 29, 2025. Courts commonly find good cause exists under Rule 16 to amend a pleading where a party learns of new supporting facts in discovery and diligently moves to make amendment accordingly. See § IV, supra.

Third, YMTC consents to MTI’s requested amendments, and both parties agree that no other adjustments to the Court’s case schedule are necessary (other than the modifying the date to allow MTI to amend its pleadings). This is because MTI has already provided infringement contentions on these patents, and the YMTC Entities have already provided invalidity contentions. The opening claim construction briefs are due on March 17, 2025. To the extent that YMTC selects a term for construction from these three patents, sufficient time exists for the parties to present that term to the Court in the opening briefs.

B. MTI’s Proposed Amendment Is Permitted Under Rule 15 Because YMTC Provided Written Consent

Under Rule 15, “[w]here the opposing party consents to the filing of an amended pleading, the amendment should be allowed.” Atlas, 2016 WL 11521727, at *3 (citing Fern, 213 F.2d at 677). Here, the YMTC Entities have provided written consent to MTI filing its Second Amended Counterclaims. Ex. B. Accordingly, Rule 15 permits MTI to file its Second Amended Counterclaims.

VI. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, MTI respectfully requests that the Court grant Micron’s motion and modify the case schedule to permit MTI to file its Second Amended Counterclaims.
