

wherein the memory controller is operable to receive a compressed block of data from the system memory;

wherein the hardware decompression engine in the memory controller is operable to decompress the compressed block of data to produce an uncompressed block of data; wherein the memory controller is operable to provide the uncompressed block of data to a device after the hardware decompression engine decompresses the compressed block of data.

* * * * *